RAISING HUSBANDS

Marriage isn't solely about love. It requires patience, understanding, and the decision to remain together, even during difficult times. But what do you do when the husband you married starts to feel like a stranger? When misunderstandings escalate into distance, and love shifts from joy to mere endurance?

Do you confront him, walk away, or learn how to support a husband?

This book is not about fixing men; it's about truly understanding them. It's about recognizing their quiet struggles, accepting their love in subtle ways, and believing in their goodness even when words fail them.

Through real-life anecdotes and thoughtful reflections, Raising Husbands encourages women to mature with their husbands, not against them. At times, the most vocal love is not the most powerful; rather, it's the one that endures.

Kino Amark dreams of flying in Akea, a place where all the Citizens have special abilities. But Kino can only dream because, in this place where everyone has special gifts, Kino is the only one without any.

However, Kino is worried. Because at the moon's turning (the end of the year), he must present his power to the emperor during the Akean Wine Festival. If he doesn't present any, he wouldn't be registered as a Citizen, and how sad would that be? So, he is determined to fly. He crafts wings from all sorts of leaves, but his efforts have resulted in one failure after another.

Little does Kino know that his heritage links him to the former emperor, a clan thought to be long gone, and a princess who can make things happen by writing them.

Nor does Kino know that a great destiny awaits him . . . If only he could get past the daily challenges in school and discover that there is a secret that has been controlling his power from manifesting.

With the help of Kino's friends, Mayo Calo, the super adventurous boy, and Pyper San Diego, the little ghost girl, will Kino be so lucky to survive in Akea without any power? Or will the gods finally grant him one during the Akean Wine Festival?

The Dark Unveiling Book 2

After the Akean Wine Festival, Kino, Pyper, and Mayo are on the run to escape the wrath of the emperor. They travel from one land to the next and, in the process, meet other astounding Akeans! Say—the Swordless Swordsman—who can slice objects with air!

The Swordless Swordsman performs in a circus show, and he is joined by his assistant, Quila Tash, whose power of changing voices makes her ideal as a puppeteer. While the Swordless Swordsman entertains the audience in the Loondu Marketplace, Pyper notices something odd in his magical acts. She believes that he is hiding a secret, and when she confronts him about it, the Swordless Swordsman decides to run away.

What was Pyper to make of that? She must be right! And so, Kino, Pyper, and Mayo go hunting for the Swordless Swordsman and his entourage.

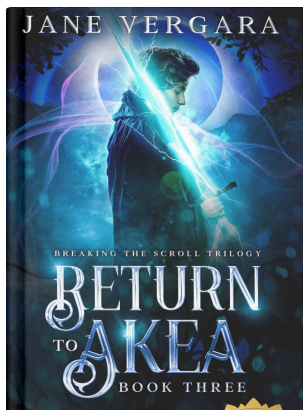

In the meantime, the twins Goemi and Miroe Pasap have a huge secret too – they are keeping a woman with them, a woman who is supposed to be dead!

As the adventure continues, the emperor's hunt for Kino and his friends becomes even more dangerous. Will Kino and his new set of friends be able to outwit their pursuers?

Or is it going to be the end of their freedom?

Kino Amark could not believe that the former Emperor of Akea, Northsam Mendel Amark, is indeed his grandfather! And it was just Kino's luck because who would be the best person to train him about his newly discovered power but someone who has had so much experience wielding one?

Meanwhile, Mayo Calo and Miroe Pasap find themselves in the Kanelan dungeons. They still hate each other's guts. However, will the damp, stinky dungeon convert them into allies and redirect their angst toward each other to plan for something that has not been done before, like escaping the Kanelan Dungeons?

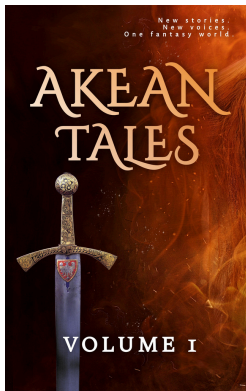

As Kino learns about his power, Pyper is planning how to rescue her friends. Mayo, on the other hand, wishes for nothing more but to go out on an adventure again. Will the three friends find their way into each other's lives again?

The wars started when Kino decided to present his power to the emperor, and it was all a mockery during that time. How was he to know that it would begin the emperor's assault over the land? Regardless, Kino now understands that for the war to end, he must fight the emperor.

His chance of winning is close to nil, but he knows that to save the Akeans from the Emperor's brutal rule, he will have to fight him. Or die trying.

Title: Breaking the Scroll
Author: Jane Vergara
Genre: YA Fantasy
Verdict: 4.9/5

I bought this book during the Book Expo in Outlets Store Lipa. I've met the author and have it signed. I hesitated a lot on purchasing this book because it is out of budget I usually buy second hand books. My wife just pushed me on buying this book because it's a great opportunity to meet the author of the book (not common for me) and I thank God I bought it.

This book is the first installment of the book trilogy Breaking the Scroll. I just want to try it out first and the only regret I have now is I should have bought the whole set (or maybe there will be a hardbound edition that will come out soon. I hope so 🤞)

The main protagonist of the book is Kino, a boy who has no power in a world where everyone has their own special power. Yup, like My Hero Academia (and my wife said, just like Encanto the Movie.... We don't talk about Bruno.... lol). Kino wants to have power/ability just to belong, because to be listed as a citizen of the land, you should present your power to the emperor when you come to an age. The story is not that unique but still the flow is great. That made it hard for me to put down/stop reading. Each chapter is a point of view of different characters in the book but still the flow is great. The book ended in a cliff hanger so buying the next book is a must. There are also characters that are introduced late so it is really pushing you to purchase the next installment.

In my opinion, the only issue about this book is the cover, it may be better to have an illustrated cover rather than pictures. The quality of the paper is different but still okay.

carencarlostor [redacted] 0s, Manila International Book Fair has always been Bam's and my bonding activity with Pop. But this year, since Bam was bitten by the bug and Pop is in Heaven, I took my mini-Mommy (who is as much a bookworm as I am) to share my excitement.

She even got to meet my favorite Filipino author, @jainsedai (Please read her books! They are so worth your time!)

And since she got hungry, I had to feed her merienda. 🍌

It was a fun, fun bonding afternoon! 💙💜
